III. Discussion and Analysis of Operations

1. Overview of operations during the reporting period

Whether the Company needs to comply with the disclosure requirements of specific industries

No

During the reporting period, the paper making industry was greatly affected by the epidemic, the paper industry was in short supply of raw materials, logistics was blocked, and the operation and production resumption rate was low within the industry. The overseas epidemic outbreak suppressed the overseas demand for paper products in the paper industry. In addition, the domestic demand for paper had been sluggish since the epidemic. The downward pressure on the prices of major paper types had increased. There was a significant decline in the economic benefit of the paper making industry as a whole.

Wuhan Chenming and Huanggang Chenming, subsidiaries of the Company, were at the centre of the epidemic. Their suspension of production to fight against the epidemic affected the overall performance of the Company to a certain extent. However, other major production bases of the Company not only did their best to prevent and control the epidemic, but also achieved production at close to full capacity, gradually demonstrating the benefits of pulp and paper integration. Various operating indicators improved during the first half of the year as compared to the corresponding period of last year, including completing pulp production of 1.66 million tonnes and machine-made paper production of 2.75 million tonnes, representing a year-on-year increase of 59.70% and 27.90% respectively; achieving revenue of RMB13.6 billion, representing a year-on-year increase of 1.88%; and achieving net profit of RMB516 million, steadily increasing from the corresponding period of last year.

In the second half of the year, with the epidemic further under control, the economy is expected to gradually regain its vitality, market demand will gradually rebound, and the prices of the Company's major paper types will steadily rise. Coupled with the gradual recovery of wood pulp market prices, the core advantage of pulp and paper balance of the Company will be further brought into play. The performance of the Company will significantly improve with the recovery of the national economy and market conditions.
